LEARNING OUTCOMES	Knowledge and understanding Students must demonstrate knowledge and understanding of the main problems of the Latin language and literature. They will have to know: the linguistic, morphological and syntactic aspects, in synchronic and diachronic perspective; the basic elements of textual criticism; the specific aspects of a text and its literary genre; the stylistic, thematic and possibly metrics peculiarities of a text. Applying knowledge and understanding Students will be able to apply knowledge and understanding in order to: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Recognize the specificity of the Latin language and the linguistic, literary and historical aspects of ancient Rome; - Consolidate the translational and decoding skills of a text in order to a more broader understanding of literary and cultural events of ancient Rome; <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Understand the specificity of a literary text in its formal and thematic characteristics, including also adequate historical and cultural contextualization. Making judgements Students will have appropriate skills to grasp the principal elements of the Latin language and they will have the ability to gather relevant data and interpret the relationship between literature and society, ideology, form and genre norms, in order to formulate judgments on the various aspects of the Latin language and literary culture. Communication skills Students will be able to express the elements learned in a coherent and precise way and they will have to communicate information, ideas and problems to both specialist and non-specialist audiences with appropriate language and solid methodology. Learning skills Students will be able to achieve adequate Learning skills, about linguistic and literary problems; they will develop new organizations of knowledge that are necessary for them to continue to undertake further study with a high degree of autonomy.
ASSESSMENT METHODS	Ongoing evaluation, Final oral test. The final grades range from 18 to 30 points. Assessment methods Ongoing evaluation Duration: 2 hours at the end of the first module Methods: a translation test of a short piece analysed during the lessons; three questions regarding the topics of the first module Translation test (max 10 punti): Students will be assessed according to the following criteria: a) knowledge of the lexical and morphosyntactic structures of the Latin language (0-5 points) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - There isn't knowledge of the lexical and morphosyntactic structures 0 - knowledge is at a very limited extent 1 - knowledge is sufficient 3 - knowledge is adequate 3,5 - knowledge is excellent 4 b) Understanding the meaning of the passage (0-3 points) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Misunderstanding of the meaning of the text 0 - Understanding is at a very limited extent 0,5 - Understanding is sufficient 1,5 - Understanding is more than adequate 3 - Understanding is complete 3 c) correctness and coherence of the Italian translation (0-5 points) <ul style="list-style-type: none"> - Translation is totally inadequate 0 - Translation is partially coherent with the original text 1 - Translation is generally coherent with the original text 1,5 - Translation is coherent with the original text 2 - Translation is completely coherent with the original text 3 The questions will assess whether the student has: adequate knowledge of the topics; appropriate language; correct understanding of the topics; ability to make independent judgments; ability to grasp the various aspects of the Latin language and literary culture. The test will consist of four questions. Students will be assessed according to the following criteria: (max 5 points): a)Excellent knowledge of the contents; advanced ability to apply the knowledge; language always appropriate; excellent learning skills: points 5 b)good knowledge of the contents; good ability to apply the knowledge; language for the most appropriate; good learning skills: points 4 c)adequate knowledge of the contents; adequate capacity to apply the knowledge; language not always appropriate; sufficient learning skills: point 3 d)Insufficient knowledge of the contents; inadequate capacity to apply the knowledge; inappropriate language; Insufficient learning skills: points 2.

	e) poor knowledge of the contents; inadequate ability to apply the knowledge; language never appropriate; poor learning skill: point 1. The oral test consists of a colloquium aimed at ensuring, through the questions and the translation of the texts studied, the adequate possession of the knowledge required by the discipline, an adequate capacity to apply the knowledge acquired in the specific field of Latin language and literature, the ability to provide independent judgments on subjects studied, the acquisition of an adequate language. Students will be assessed according to the following criteria: a) The student demonstrates an inadequate understanding of the linguistic, historical and literary aspects of a text; he doesn't make exegetical proposals and doesn't formulate admissible judgments; he expresses himself in an unconfident and incorrect language; he hasn't achieved any learning skills. Insufficient evaluation. b) The student demonstrates just enough understanding of the linguistic, historical and literary aspects of a text; he not always makes exegetical proposals and formulates admissible judgments; he expresses himself in an unconfident language; he demonstrates just sufficient learning skills. Points 18-19 c) The student demonstrates an adequate understanding of the linguistic, historical and literary aspects of a text; he makes adequate exegetical proposals; he formulates admissible judgments; he expresses himself in a correct language; he demonstrates sufficient learning skills. Points 20-23 d) The student demonstrates a good understanding of the linguistic, historical and literary aspects of a text; he makes convincing exegetical proposals; he formulates judgments autonomously; he expresses himself in an accurate language; he demonstrates significant learning skills. Points 24-27 e) The student demonstrates excellent understanding of the linguistic, historical and literary aspects of a text; he makes very convincing exegetical proposals; he formulates judgments autonomously; he expresses himself in a very accurate language; he demonstrates excellent learning skills. points 28-30. The final assessment will result from the sum of the results achieved in the ongoing evaluation (1/3 of the overall evaluation) and the results obtained in the oral examination (2/3 of the overall evaluation). If the result of the ongoing evaluation is insufficient (less than 18 points), in the oral examination the student will be evaluated on the whole program. Similarly, the student, who is not satisfied with the outcome of the ongoing evaluation can get a new general assessment in the oral test with questions on the whole program. The student, who for justified reasons did not take the ongoing evaluation, will consequently be examined in the final examination on the whole program; in this case he will have to arrange with the teacher an additional translation test. A "cum laude" evaluation may be added to the highest grade (30) as an award of special distinction (30 cum laude) if the student shows a solid competence of the disciplinary tools and knows how to use autonomously the secondary literature
TEACHING METHODS	lessons; exercitations

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES OF THE MODULE

The course aims to provide an adequate knowledge of the linguistic and literary issues of ancient Rome. It will develop a fundamental understanding of the Roman cultural events in relation to the historical context.

There will be a continuous reflection on peculiar characteristics of the language, in synchronic and diachronic perspective and with particular attention to specific languages in connection to various literary genres.

The course will cover different kinds of text (poetry and prose) in order to develop specific skills in the recognition of the fundamental elements of the various literary genres and their different uses.

The reading of the most representative texts and authors will also allow to approach the main cultural issues of Latin culture.

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES OF THE MODULE

This course will offer to the students the progress both of linguistic skills and knowledge of fundamental aspects of Latin culture. The course is divided in two modules and four steps: the first (A.1), about institutions of Latin language and culture; the second and the third (A.2; B.3) about important texts for understanding Latin literature and its influence in contemporary culture. Papers proposed can illustrate the ways of culture's production and its transmission and use in Rome, or they can highlight most important questions about Latin texts examined during the classes. In the fourth step (B.4), the students will deal with particular themes of research.
