PREREQUISITES	Basic knowledge of the general principles on human rights, economic and social rights and civil law.
LEARNING OUTCOMES	- Knowledge and understanding: students will gain a general knowledge of the foundations of sociology of labour and labour law related to immigrants within the Italian and the European contexts characterised by multiculturalism. - Applying knowledge and comprehension: students will learn to understand law and sociology from a different perspective than their domestic systems and in a foreign language. In particular, students will acquire specific knowledge and skills, which are necessary to understand: the contemporary labour market evolution processes, by devoting particular attention to dynamics of segmentation, exploitation and segregation based on gender, nationality and legal status; and to understand the rights of migrants related to the execution of the contract of employment and to welfare benefits (pensions and social assistance measures) within the multilevel legal framework (international, EU and domestic law), and the related antidiscriminatory implications. - Making judgements: students will develop a critical approach about some evolving legal and sociological concepts which are central to the protection of migrant rights in the fields of labour and welfare. They will learn how to make an independent assessment on legal and sociological issues in a multidisciplinary perspective. Thanks to the acquired critical capabilities, students will be able to develop an autonomous reasoning, with regard to both practical cases and scholarly opinions. - Communicating skills: students will gain awareness of the meaning of the words used to communicate ideas, considering the single relevant context. They will be able to use appropriately sociological and legal terminologies in the labour field; to deal with a controversial legal and sociological questions individuating its key points; to use different communicating skills - either orally or in written - in order to illustrate a legal or sociological specific matter, using an adequate academic terminology; to conduct bibliographic researches and to use appropriately web instruments, such as electronic data banks, electronic reviews etc.; - Learning skills: students will learn the use of labour law and sociology under an international, European and domestic perspective. They will obtain an overall understanding of sociology and labour law of migrations and an appropriate studying methodology, which will provide them with the capability to undertake activities (such as the consultation of relevant bibliographic, normative and case law material) in order to carry-out high specialised studying paths. Students will be able to apply the specific learning methods acquired in the course in order to enhance and update their skills in professional contexts.
ASSESSMENT METHODS	The exam consists of an interview aimed at ascertaining the level of knowledge of the topics in the syllabus, the level of command in the specialised Language and the ability of the candidate to develop a reasoning aimed at the application of theoretical knowledge to specific cases in order to argue and possible solutions. Grades are on a scale between 18 and 30 cum laude, according to the following evaluation grid: -Excellent 30-30 cum laude: the student shows excellent knowledge of the topics, excellent property language, excellent capacity of analysis; the student is able to apply theoretical knowledge to real cases which are proposed to be analysed. He/she is also able to properly argue possible solution, including multiple alternatives. - Very good 26-29: the student shows good knowledge of the topics, good properties of language, good capacity analytical; the student is able to apply theoretical knowledge to real cases which are proposed to be analysed. The student is able to adequately apply theoretical knowledge to real cases which are proposed to be analysed. - Good 24-25: the student shows basic knowledge of the main topics, good property of language, the student shows limited ability to apply theoretical knowledge to real cases which are proposed to be analysed. -Satisfactory 21-23: the student does not show that complete command of the main teaching topics, although showing to know the basic knowledges; he/she shows satisfactory property of language albeit with a poor ability to adequately apply theoretical knowledge to real cases which are proposed to be analysed. - Sufficient 18-20: the student shows minimal knowledge of the main teaching and technical language issues, limited or no capacity to adequately apply theoretical knowledge to real cases which are proposed to be analysed. The outcome of the exam is insufficient if the student does not have an acceptable knowledge of the contents of the various topics on the agenda. N. 1 Mid-term oral exam on voluntary basis (mark out of 30).

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES OF THE MODULE

The main goal of the course is to provide students with specific knowledge and skills, which are necessary to understand the contemporary labour market evolution processes, by devoting particular attention to dynamics of segmentation and segregation based on gender, nationality, legal status, etc. To this end the course will focus on some emblematic issues, which are at the centre of the complex interplay between different regimes, such as the specific condition of migrant women employed in the domestic sector, or the exploitation of migrant work in agricultural contexts. Particular relevance will also be given to the acquisition of specific knowledge to identify continuity and change in the labour market processes due to the presence of migrant workers, and to evaluate the concrete impact of political, normative and economic interventions on dynamics of exploitation.

SYLLABUS
