INDIVIDUAL STUDY (Hrs)	120
COURSE ACTIVITY (Hrs)	30

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES OF THE MODULE

The aim of the course is to provide students with the theoretical and empirical tools useful in acquiring the main contents of the discipline and the problems related to its study. Special attention is paid to the analysis of social, political, legal, demographic and cultural dimensions that have contributed to social differences and inequalities. These topics will be approached from a perspective that highlights the specificity of the changes that have occurred in Italy in recent decades and from the perspective of a critical reflection of prescriptive and regulatory models. Special attention will also be paid to the consequences of inequality on people. Part of the course will also be devoted to the study of the social conditions of the Roma people.
